Mr. McClure:

On behalf of the AIA, California Council and the 11,000 architects and design professionals we represent in California, we commend the Woodwork Institute for its tremendous contributions to the design and construction industry.

We appreciate WI core values which only support and ensure the highest level of quality for architectural millwork. The competence and work ethic WI has proven throughout the decades is evident in your licensees and how they have executed your extensive application process. It is with this level of values and dedication that the design profession is enhanced and enriched with the ability to achieve a predictable outcome for its clients.

The AIACC recognizes the quality of your organization and the time WI puts forth in ensuring all architects and other design professionals have a means through which to place the high-end stamp of millwork on their designs. Thus, based on the Woodwork Institute's continued education of the AIA community towards quality architectural millwork specifications and design, and its corresponding quality assurance and quality affirmation programs, the AIACC endorses the Woodwork Institute as "millwork specifier and certifier."

Sincerely,

Paul W. Welch, Jr., Hon. AIA
